The High Road School of Perryville is a Type 1 educational program serving special education students in Cecil and Harford counties whose instructional and behavioral needs are best met in an alternative setting. With over 20 years of company experience informing all facets of our program, we custom-design our curriculums and interventions to achieve personalized academic and social goals so that students may either return to a less restrictive setting as quickly as possible or graduate from our school as equipped as possible to lead fulfilling and productive lives.

High Road attributes the remarkable progress we've been able to make with challenging students to our distinct educational model, which features small class sizes, individualized instruction, rotational tutorials, computerized learning tools, and the attainment of core skills and aptitudes. We stay focused on keeping students interested and engaged en route to making scholastic and social gains, on preventing regression, and on preparing them to meet state testing standards. And for our older students, our "school-to-work" career training readies them for responsible, self-sufficient adulthood. Through it all, we implement a comprehensive behavior management system that both motivates students to develop appropriate behaviors and imparts the satisfaction and pride of academic achievement and positive performance.

Above all else, the High Road School of Perryville is committed to heightening the self-esteem of every student in our care, so we strive each day to give them every opportunity to reap the rewards of personal success — in the classroom, at home, and in the community.
